The Evening Post.

WILMINGTON, N. C.
Thursday, October 2d, 1873.

The New York Daily Graphic is not now the only illustrated daily in the world. The columns of the Raleigh Daily News this morning show that we have also entered the list. The Daily Graphic may now look to its laurels, while we ask the public to look to our pictures.

We hope our friends Stone et al. won't go up in a balloon, and cut off most of his North Carolina exchanges right after it.

THE concourse of pilgrims to Paray le Monial, in France, proves that the credulity of mankind has not perceptibly diminished since the days of the Crusades. A young woman, Marie Alacoque by name, is represented by those who think that their interests can be supported by an imposture, to have been visited by the Saviour, who took her heart out of her body and placed it on his own, where it was purified by fire, and then restored to her. She is the symbol of the Church, as she is the spiritual bride of Christ. This absurd story has drawn thousands of otherwise sensible people, many of them English, to the spot where the miracle was so recently performed. Such a tale would seem better located in that period when it was firmly believed that angels brought the Virgin Mary's house from Nazareth to Loretto, or some other monkish history. For the practical age we live in, which usually brings everything to the severest tests, to believe this fanciful tale is almost incomprehensible, yet the organ of the Catholic Church in England gravely asserts its truth.

A Recent Importation from Scotland.

Dr. McCosh, of Princeton College, has conjured a spirit which, it seems, he cannot easily lay. At a recent Educational Convention at Elmira, he suggested the propriety of the National Government doing something to diffuse knowledge among the blacks. For this he was fiercely assailed by the Democratic press of the South, which stoutly maintains that the "party of wealth and intelligence" is desirous of opening the doors of learning to the negro, and giving him what education his capacity can acquire. The Raleigh News, in particular, denounces, with those epithets which rancor alone can give, the Washington Republican, for asserting that the old slaveholders are opposed to popular education. The point in issue is not precisely popular education, but the education of the black race. Upon the latter subject we would be pleased to have some fact of a general nature which would contradict the prevailing impression. Until it is made evident to the contrary, it must be credited that the spirit which sequestered knowledge from the slave, still would deny it to the freedmen; and general assertions, unsupported by facts, couched in abusive language, will not evince that the Democracy is anxious for the intellectual elevation of the negro.

The Panic Over—A Great Victory Gained.

The panic is over, and one of the greatest triumphs known in financial history has been gained. The reopening of the Stock Exchange yesterday marked the end of an eventful flurry, and gave us assurance of the completeness of the victory achieved by men in legitimate business over the rash and heedless speculators in Wall street. It is the triumph of financial soundness and solid worth over the uncertainties of heedless speculation, of correct methods of doing business over the adventurous ways of men in haste to be rich; of moderation and conservatism over greedy recklessness and reckless greed. Not a single member of the Stock Exchange failed to meet his obligation. The day's transactions were entirely free from the spirit of speculation. Never was business conducted with more caution and confidence. The routine of the Exchange was taken up as if only a Sunday had intervened since its doors were closed. A great crisis, involving fearful loss to the country and great suffering among the people, has been averted by the calmness and moderation which allowed the storm to spend its fury upon those who had courted and provoked it. Only the buxom bankers, the wild speculators, in uncertainties and insecurities and the unsound banks and trust companies have failed. Not a single mercantile house in this city has fallen or even sensibly suffered from the force of the storm. The prosperity of the country is unaffected. Much in the way of reform will now be needed, especially as regards the management of savings banks and in relief and security from the national banking system; but just at the moment we have only rejoicing that the crisis is past, that a panic in Wall street will not inevitably bring ruin to the country and that the power of reckless speculation is broken, if not entirely destroyed. The victory is due to the wisdom of General Grant, the caution of our men of business and the moderation of the press and the people.—N. Y. Herald.

EDITORIAL BUDGET.

The quarrel between Jay Gould and Bischoffsheim, growing out of the sale of fifteen thousand shares of the Erie railway stock, was amicably adjusted by their respective representatives on Monday evening, and a heavy litigation about to be begun by the latter stopped.

Political affairs in Panama continue in a disturbed and uncertain condition. Some three hundred men are kept under arms in consequence of a large number of rebels against the existence of the government being in the woods near the city, which they threaten to come in and attack.

A visit to the different savings banks in New York, October 1st, shows that all fears on the part of depositors have vanished, and that large numbers who drew out money last week have returned it. There are about $13,000,000 in greenbacks in the vaults, which, when all signs of any run are passed, will be distributed through other channels.

The financial situation in Chicago, October 1st, presented a much brighter aspect than the day before. Receipts of currency continue large, some $3,000,000 being reported, while demands upon deposits are falling off. In fact, some banks have begun to furnish their customers with the usual accommodations. The prospect is that it will not be long before business will resume its wonted channels.

A board of officers, consisting of Gens. Gilmore, Love and Lorain, and Colonels Treadwell and Bennett, of the ordnance corps, have assembled at Fortress Monroe to test the Gatling gun in comparison with the eight-inch howitzer loaded with canister. The howitzer is loaded and fired a given number of times, and the effect on the target noted, also the time consumed in loading and firing. The Gatling gun is then given the same time, and its effect noted and compared. Mr. Gatling is superintending in person the firing of his gun. The result is not yet known.

From letters received in New York from Dundee, Scotland, from the Polar survivors, published in the Republican, we glean the following vivid description of their rescue: "The captain of the Ravenscraig, which rescued the party, says when they were first discovered they were thirteen or fourteen miles distant, making their way over pack ice to their ship. Eighteen picked men were sent to their assistance, and it took the entire party seven hours to make their way back to the vessel. This arose from the soft and slushy state of the deep snow covering the ice, while myriads of huge hummocks were piled and heaped everywhere over the surface, which was also much split and full of treacherous holes, into which many a flounder took place. The party were delighted to hear from us of the safety of their comrades. They never expected to hear from them more, and were much surprised at their miraculous escape from what appeared a lingering, if not a speedy death. It was doubtless, also, a truly providential circumstance that placed the Ravenscraig in a position to pick this party of castaways up. Had such not happened, it is highly probable that none of them would have ever reached the Danish settlements, when we consider their resources as regards food, the state of their boats and the impracticability of traveling on foot a distance of at least three hundred miles over such treacherous ice as then covered the expanse of Melville bay. Only six weeks' provisions were left. Although divided with the utmost economy, and even with plenty of ammunition and arms, sufficient food could not, in all probability, have been obtained to support fourteen men during so long a march. Bears, seals and birds are scarcely to be got at. The boats of the Polaris crew both got stove as soon as they got entangled in the Melville pack ice. The first portion of their voyage had been performed in open water for the most part, so that their greater difficulties were only begun when we sighted them. Moreover, the rest of the journey must have been attempted without shelter of any kind. In fact, they were totally unprepared, both as regards boats and clothing, for such an arduous undertaking.

Odd, rather, that so many horses should run away and smash vehicles to which they are so much attached.

Horse thieves are so thick in the prairie regions of Texas that vigilance committees have been formed to encourage tree planting.

The question of where all the Smiths come from is answered. A factory in a neighboring city bears the sign, "Smith Manufacturing Company."

"Spanish stew" is announced on the bill of fare for a fashionable up-town dining room. A disagreeable man thinks that it must come from Cat-alona.

The latest instance afforded by a fond mother of her son's cleverness is said soon to correct her for saying he was all over dirt. He said that the dirt was all over him.

A cow that gives buttermilk is reported from Putnam county. Her owner is looking for another of the same breed, on the principle that one good churn deserves another.

The precious school-boy, who, quoting from a distinguished statesman, said he "knew no north nor south," was surprised to find himself put at the bottom of the class in geography.

A teacher, who, in a fit of vexation, called her pupils a set of young adders, on being reproved, apologized by saying that she was speaking to those just commencing their arithmetic.

"Hello, Bill!" cried a bootblack to a companion yesterday, "heard yer old dad had broke his leg?" "He did that," replied the "shiner" addressed, "and wasn't it bully for me, though? He was going to wallop me that very night."

SINGULAR AFFECTION.—The St Louis Republican says that on Tuesday a poor family of foot travelers made application to the office of the Mullanphy Board, in that city, for some aid to prosecute their journey. The party consisted of Mrs. Sarah Hatfield; her father, aged about eighty; her sister, fifty; a boy of thirteen; a girl of fourteen, and two dogs. They represented that they were moving to Lawrence, Kan., and had come all the way on foot from Columbus, Ohio—having walked the distance because the railroad companies refused to transport their dogs. The affection they had for the animals was such that they would on no account consent to a separation. An arrangement was finally effected, by which the party were given transportation on the railroad to Lawrence, except the widowed sister, aged fifty, and the fourteen-year-old girl, who concluded to make the trip on foot with the two dogs to Lawrence, a distance of 400 miles. The separation was painful, although only for a short time, and the reunion of dogs and all will make the family again happy.

An exchange concludes that Mecklenburg county is alive to the necessity of internal improvements, the county having at sundry times issued $320,000 of county bonds to aid in building railroads in that county, to wit: $60,000 subscribed to the Wilmington, Charlotte and Rutherford Railroad, issued in 1868—$200,000 subscribed to Charlotte and Atlanta Railroad, issued in 1870, and $60,000 subscribed to Charlotte and Statesville Railroad, issued in 1873. The result of this enlightened policy is said to be that the value of real estate in Mecklenburg county has doubled, and Charlotte is fast becoming one of the most prosperous towns in the South.

STATE ITEMS.

Eleven colored people, six women and five men, were baptized in the river at Tarboro on Sunday last.

Tarboro claims to consume double more oysters than any other town of the same size in North Carolina, which shows a proper appreciation of good things.

The Times says that New-Berne has many young men whose usefulness in life would be increased by the organization of a Young Men's Christian Association.

The Greensboro North State says:—"Some of our merchants are getting new goods, but they slip them in so quietly we suppose they do not want anything said about it. We hope there's nothing wrong about the goods."

A special friend of the Piedmont Press has sent it a twenty-five dollar advertisement to be inserted as a communication, with the request to send him a dozen copies of the Press, and ask the Christian Advocate to copy. Of course, he will send a subscriber, maybe.

The Raleigh Era man is down on the roads in Wake county and scolds terribly, the secret of which is that while outriding he got stuck in the mud and had to cut harness, unhitch horse and go knee deep in mud, with his Sunday rigging on before he could get out. There must have been an awful lot of profanity used on the occasion.

The three counties of Guilford, Randolph and Davidson have reported for the year ending June 30th, 1873, 297 public schools, in which 12,757 pupils were instructed. A Teachers' Institute of four weeks was held in each of these counties last Summer, in which from thirty-seven to one hundred teachers were instructed.

The Sentinel says: "In compliance with our request of yesterday morning, Mr. J. B. Neatherly has laid upon our table a specimen of the much-talked of vegetable wool. The specimen was grown in the garden of S. W. Terrell, Esq., of Salisbury. It is equal to everything that has been said of it and can hardly be distinguished from the finest merino wool. A gentleman, well known in this community for his disregard of the sanctity of an editor's sanctum, said he'd be d—d if it wasn't wool, and he wasn't altogether certain that the wool didn't come off a sheep's back." It is certainly a great discovery and will no doubt be extensively grown."

The Raleigh Era has gotten off a big thing. It says "there is advertised to be a distillers' meeting at Wilmington in October. Let some one make a note of their politics. It is fair to say that nine-tenths of them will be Nasby Democrats. The Statesville American says it is so in that section of the State. Whisky and ku-kluxism are kindred poisons, which are both distilled by Democracy. Come out of that business, my Republican friend, says a person at our elbow, it is the wrong pew for you to be in, and engage in some other traffic. Leave the fire-water to Democracy and the ku-klux." Our piney woods readers will readily understand the joke in the above, but we will inform the Era that the business of the distillers who propose meeting in Wilmington is the manufacture of spirits of turpentine and not whisky.

The American Bible Union, for the revision of the Bible, met in New York Wednesday and elected officers. The board of managers reported satisfactory progress in revising the Bible, and expected it to be finished this year.

— The precocious school-boy, who, quoting from a distinguished statesman, said he "knew no north nor south," was surprised to find himself put at the bottom of the class in geography.
